HONGKONG, SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1893.

THE WATER SYSTEM.

Now that the rainy season seems to have commenced in earnest, there is no longer any immediate cause for anxiety or fear of a water famine this year; for presumably as soon as our magnificent storage reservoirs are filled to a reasonable height the full supply will be turned on again, and the immense inconvenience and serious trouble which has been caused during the last few weeks will cease—for the present.

But the danger still exists, a danger which Mr. FAICE, formerly Surveyor General of this Colony, said never could exist since the expensive Taitam waterworks were completed. The actual experience of the last three years in Hongkong has given FAICE the lie direct. He may have been a most capable man, trustworthy and honorable—"so are they all, all honorable men!"—but the fact remains that he, said the Colony practically never could run short of water, whereas here we are in 1893, as in 1891, reduced to the miserable extremities of a downright famine. In the old days of town wells and doubtful brooks we sometimes ran nearly as short of water as now, but then we had not the privilege of paying millions of dollars for installation and upkeep, salaries and contingencies.

Now, with all the expense, we have an able Director of Public Works publicly stating in his report that his predecessor's golden prospect was an utter sham, that our water supply is lamentably inadequate, and that it is only possible to turn on the water three hours out of the twenty-four; but can the Director's immediate subordinates be classed as qualified men? Is there no "system" in vogue of turning on water in favored centres, and of cutting it off in others not basking in the light of their approval? We have a short service, resulting in total stoppage in many places, where apparently the three hours are not sufficient to force the water through the pipes; we have untold distress among the Chinese and others, who are so often lauded as "peaceful and quiet citizens"—fools that they are to remain so quiet when their money is taken from them with absolutely no return! Will Mr. COOPER inquire into the respective quantities which are supplied to various communities during those three hours?

Does the fault lie there, and if so, what is to be the remedy? Water we must have, in a colony which has been in past years devastated by fearful epidemics, and might at any time be isolated by war and thrown entirely on its own resources; and which must increase its requirements daily if population, manufactures, trade and the life of the port are not to be starved out. Without stopping to blame men for the follies or frauds of the past, without enquiring who was responsible for the defective work, or who got most of the ratepayers' money through the waterworks scheme, we must at the earliest possible moment and at any cost perfect our water supply. We must not be satisfied to cut our coat according to our cloth, but get cloth big enough for the coat we require; and if funds are lacking, stop some other colossal expense—salaries, or military contribution, or something—anything, so that we get water enough for our wants. And first we ought to find out carefully what our wants amount to. It has been stated often that many consumers waste water, or at any rate use it more freely than they would if they had to pay by quantity. This we know to be true to a great extent; the wasteful practice followed by house servants and tolerated by householders, of sluicing floors and verandahs by means of whole cataracts, instead of washing as in civilised countries, is responsible for much of the excessive consumption. Other details might be enumerated, but need not be discussed, for the reason that in all cases the remedy is so simple—enforce payment by quantity, as the Gas Company does. It is only fair; and it provides at once complete machinery for tracing every gallon of water from the reservoir to the point of consumption. A meter at Taitam would show whether the whole contents of the reservoir passed through the tunnel only, or whether any escaped through the dam; and a meter at the Bowen Road tunnel-mouth ought to settle definitely (if the question ever again arises) whether there is any leak in the tunnel; and other meters at all the principal distributing points would answer similar purposes. If there could be a meter for every tap (which would of course mean great initial expense, but would also mean a perfect system) the total outflow from Taitam should balance with the totalised meter returns, and every consumer's requirements be gauged and paid for. If the cost of this complete system be thought too much, it would be cheaper to have one meter for every ward of the town, or one for every thousand taps, or every hundred, or on some such regular scale. It would then be easy to ascertain whether the total requirements are greater than the minimum supply, and the consumption could be limited for every tap at a day's notice, on the first symptom of supply being less than demand, instead of going full speed ahead and then pulling up with a sudden jerk, as has been done hitherto, with such excessively unpleasant results. In fact they have been not only unpleasant, but disastrous peculiarly; for many house-owners have lost good tenants, especially about Staunton Street, simply because they cannot get a drop of water even in the three hours when the water is turned on in the City. This statement which we have repeated often, is no mere record or exaggeration; it is officially on record that a formal complaint was sent in to Mr. COOPER, who deputed a waterman to investigate, with much other result than a stolid non possumus—presumably the service pipes were so faulty that the flow, once stopped, could not go on again in three hours. As a curious contrast, a number of hongs on the Praya were flooded out for some weeks lately, with waste water from some leak. From our own experience, in the past week, we have found that not a drop of water waste be had on Pedder's Hill any time in the 24 hours, while on higher levels as well as lower there was a good supply from 7 to 10 a.m. Even now, so little faith can be placed in the waterworks for which we pay so much, that the Chinese domestics have, like the Shunamite woman whose curse of God was blessed by the prophet, had to requisition every old tub in the neighbourhood, old hats and boots, kerosene cans, job lots of "pottery which if not handsome is very ancient" as Governor ROBINSON nearly said—in order to catch the gentle rain from Heaven, for which we never paid a million dollars, nor supported a costly staff of lazy incapables to turn it off 24 hours a day and fail to turn it on again the other three!

Of course, if people patiently persist in stamping up their hard-earned coin for water which they cannot get, that is their business, "not ours." They have an undeniable claim for rebate equal to the amount of money they have to spend on coolie hire to get water elsewhere; but if they do not enforce their claim, that does not affect anybody else. What does affect everybody in the Colony, including His Excellency the Governor and every individual member of the Gubernatorial family, down to the chair-coolie's newest baby, is that a water famine may mean an epidemic. Old residents—not necessarily old, indeed, for ten years would be more than sufficient—hardly need to be reminded what epidemics have done in Hongkong.

The most casual visitor to the "prettiest burial ground in the world" cannot fail to notice the mournful monuments of past plagues, which killed their thousands. The millennium has not yet arrived; every small brings news of towns in Japan devastated by pestilence; Malacca is slowly recovering from a cholera epidemic which carried off the highest judicial dignitary of the Straits; small-pox, typhoid, cholera, are all about us, appearing now and then in our midst, to remind us that our community may any day be decimated.

WE are informed by the Agents of the Austrian Lloyd's S. N. Co. that the Company's steamer Marta Valeria left Kobe for this port at 6 a.m. to-day.

ST. PETER'S SEAMEN'S CHURCH.—The Mission steam-launch Day Spring will call alongside the Australian cities. Salary—£1 per week each!

THE N. C. DAILY NEWS learns that the Shengao has received a special telegram from Nanking announcing the suicide by poison, in prison, of the notorious Li Hung, the Kaoao Hui chief. On hearing the news of his death his wife and confidante determined not to outlive him, and both committed suicide.

A TYPE of firearm has been invented in England by which compressed gas is utilized instead of powder as a propelling force. The reservoir containing the gas is provided with a valve which is momentally opened by the blow of the hammer when the latter is released by the pulling of the trigger, thereby allowing a portion of the contents of the reservoir to escape into the barrel of the gun and force the projectile therefrom.

In the Birmingham Daily Gazette of the 30th ult. is an article on "French Policy in Siam," from the pen of Capt. A. J. Lotus, formerly Hydrographer to the King of Siam. In speaking of the "tricky designs" of France, the writer says that country is certainly suffering from misanthropic ideas, and her stamping tourists, departmental and otherwise, are bent upon an aggrandizement, which in plain English, is only another name for spoliation or robbery.

In reference to the recent French movements on the Mekong, which the supporters of the Government hourly praise as a splendid stroke of diplomatic genius, a Saigon correspondent writes to the Advertiser:—"Stung-teng and Khone, which have just been occupied, are situated on this side of the new border formed by the Taitam reservoir, and which might easily be dammed so as to double the capacity of the reservoir. A correspondent 'O.M.A.' sends us a plan, with sketch map, which we regret our inability to reproduce, but which we would be glad to show to any person who is not so well acquainted with the place as to grasp the idea at once. Whenever there is a very heavy rainfall (which occurs two or three or half-a-dozen times a year in Hongkong) millions of gallons run off and are lost through this overflow. The Taitam Valley is double-headed; only one half is dammed, and the other half, separated from the reservoir by the land on which the caretaker's cottage is built, could just as easily be built up and connected, say by a culvert under the road leading to Hongkong, or by a simple deepening of the present overflow channel. We give the idea for what it is worth; if the consumption of water can be conveniently reduced below the present supply, there is no need of further storage; but either one way or the other, some improvement must be made soon.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

H.M.S. Redpole arrived at Shanghai from Foochow on the 23rd inst.

Owing to pressure on our space, we are obliged to hold over "the Hongkong stony-broker" until a future date.

On the morning of the 19th April two sailors were crushed to death at Haiphong by the steamer Castor being driven aground at the bank of the river in a strong breeze.

In proportion to their numbers, the Jews supply about a dozen times as many arrests and accusations as the Gentiles. Which fact would seem to prove that the Jew acts whilst the Gentile only feels.

The Agents (Messrs. Dodwell, Carlill & Co.) inform us that the Chinese Pacific Steamship Co.'s steamer Victoria which sailed from Yokohama on the 15th inst. arrived at Tacoma on the 27th ult.

THE POST OFFICE authorities inform us that in consequence of the P. & O. steamer Oriental having left Singapore about a week ahead of her schedule date, the Marine Office has raised her, and the mail will therefore arrive here unsorted.

In a recent Review of Reviews Stead characterizes a Chinese opium-smoking, which has appeared in the Idler magazine as "a detectable and disgusting tale," which has no right to be published in the English language." This is pretty "steep" for the author of "Modern Babylon" and Dilke's biography.

Yer another indication of the enterprise of Messrs. A. E. Skeels & Co., auctioneers and valuers, at their large sale held this afternoon were distributed amongst three present. This practice is to be continued throughout the summer months and should prove a comforting boon to both casual and constant attendants at their sales.

A HONGKONG correspondent writes that on Sunday (6th April) a very serious accident occurred to Mr. Wu, Chinese interpreter at H.B.M.'s consulate at Phu-lang-chuon on Tuesday (18th April) and brought to Haiphong in custody of the police. He is now doing well. If this had happened instead of before the departure of Dr. McCandless, the consequences would probably have been much more serious.

THE SINGAPORE Free Press notes that the recent service pipes were so faulty that the flow, once stopped, could not go on again in three hours. As a curious contrast, a number of hongs on the Praya were flooded out for some weeks lately, with waste water from some leak. From our own experience, in the past week, we have found that not a drop of water waste be had on Pedder's Hill any time in the 24 hours, while on higher levels as well as lower there was a good supply from 7 to 10 a.m.

The House of Lords has adjourned to April 18th next.

MELBOURNE, March 29th.
The police court proceedings in connection with the prosecution of the directors and officials of the Mercantile Bank were continued to-day. The whole sitting was again occupied with the cross-examination of William F. Duckett, one of the liquidators of the bank. Counsel for the defence failed altogether to move him from the position he had taken up—that money had been borrowed in order to inflate the balance for the half-yearly meetings, and that this money was not properly its own in the balance-sheets. He strongly expressed the opinion that balance-sheets generally would be all the better if more information was given in them for the benefit of shareholders and depositors. Mr. Duckett was still under cross-examination when the Court rose for the day.

BRISBANE, March 29th.
Sir Thomas McIlwraith, in reply to a deputation of the unemployed, said that if he could do anything to provide work for men in want of it, he would be only too glad to do so, but no Government could take upon itself the responsibility of finding work for the people of the colony. How to raise additional money for the purpose of carrying on works in the future was a problem that would tax the best abilities of the Government. The misfortunes which had come upon the colony would force the Government to spend money which would, be thought, give employment to most people. These necessary works would be pushed on as speedily as possible.

It is understood that a new political party is in rapid course of formation. A programme is being framed, and will be submitted to the constituencies as soon as possible after the issue of the writs for the forthcoming elections. It is more than probable that the new party will be known as the "Liberal and Democratic Party," and that the leaders will be Sir Charles Lilley, Mr. John Donaldson, Mr. Charles Powers, and Mr. W. H. Groom, while many prominent men have promised the movement support.

The labour big Paris left Brisbane this morning for the New Hebrides with 150 return islanders. On account of the probability of the missionaries and others on the islands being short of provisions consequent upon the late disastrous hurricane, the agent for the Paris has sent extra supplies of biscuits, bread, flour, rice, and meat.

ADELAIDE, March 29th.
Mr. P. A. Howells received a cablegram from London this morning advising him that Madame Antoinette Sterling, the celebrated English contralto and ballad singer, would leave by the R.M.S. Austral, arriving in Adelaide about 19th May.

LONDON, March 29th.
James Spencer Balfour, ex-M.P. for Bury, and promoter of the financial companies which recently succumbed with a gross loss of seven millions sterling, has been received to the city of Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay, in South America. He had at least £15,000 in bank notes in his possession when he absconded.

March 30th.
Miss Shaw, a special correspondent of the Times, has a letter in that journal dealing with the security of the public debt of Victoria, which she says is as safe as Consols. The money represented by the debt has been most wisely expended in works of a reproductive nature. Referring to the present state of depression, she expresses the opinion that the chief remedy will be found in increasing the production from the soil and in the development of increased exports, and she believes that Melbourne, as the capital of the colony, will share in the recovery.

President Cleveland has announced that a special session of the United States Congress will be held in September and October, for the purpose of discussing the tariff.

The Norddeutsche Zeitung, in referring to the attack made in Paris upon the reporter of the Berliner Tageblatt, says that it views with regret and apprehension the efforts of French statesmen to obtain the applause of the mob by unjust and hostile acts against Germans.

April 1st.
The Duchess of Fife, eldest daughter of the Prince of Wales, has given birth to a daughter.

The employees of the Carnegie Company, Pennsylvania, are organizing another strike.

Serious disturbances have occurred in connection with the shipping strike at Hull. The unionists refused to unload a steamer employing non-unionists, and the dispute ended in the latter being attacked. Messrs. Wilson Bros. were mobbed, and are now under the protection of the police. A detachment of the Scott Guards and First Dragoons have been sent down from London to preserve order, a serious outbreak being feared. All the seamen, firemen, and watermen in Hull have joined the strikers, and attempts are being made by the unionists to extend the movement to Liverpool, Glasgow, and London.

Later.

All business at Hull is entirely suspended, and there is a universal feeling of excitement and anxiety. Further serious rioting has taken place, and the aspect of affairs is so threatening that the strength of the military detachment has been considerably augmented. Guards have also been ordered to the locality to protect the shipping.

It is feared that a general strike of dock labourers throughout Great Britain is imminent. The various labour unions are appealing for funds.

PERTH (W. A.), April 1st.
Further outbreaks of smallpox have occurred, and it is feared the disgusting disease has obtained too firm a foothold to be readily stamped out. Four distinct cases are now under surveillance. The Government is erecting a hospital for the treatment of infectious diseases, and it is expected the building will be completed within ten days. In the meantime an encampment has been formed at a safe and convenient distance from the Waterworks Reservoir.

SYDNEY 1st April.
In reply to a monster petition, signed by women, praying for the release of the late Broken Hill strike leaders, the Minister of Justice has recommended a reduction of the several sentences. In accordance with this Heribote will actually serve only six months; Hewitt and Polkinghorne twelve months; Sleath and Ferguson sixteen months. The Acting-Governor approves the proposal.

April 1st.

Alfred Pollen has been sentenced in Sydney to ten years' imprisonment for the manslaughter of a Chinaman.

PERTH (W. A.), April 1st.
Five known cases of small-pox exist in Perth, and many others are suspected. Intense excitement prevails in consequence.

FATAL BOAT ACCIDENT; THREE PERSONS DROWNED.

A very sad and fatal accident happened at Shanghai on 23rd inst. in the river of the French Concession just after 6 o'clock, resulting in the drowning of Captain Baxendale of the steamship Kwella, Master Mitchell, the elder son Mr. T. Mitchell, Secretary of the Mercantile Marine Officers' Association, and a Chinese sailor. It appears, says the N.C. Daily News, that Captain Baxendale went down to the Point with young Mitchell and some others, earlier in the afternoon. He reached his destination safely, and met Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell there. He then said he would not take the children back with him, but young Mitchell persuaded him to let him go with him and all went well till the boat was abreast of the Norddeutsche Lloyd buoy opposite his ship, when Captain Baxendale attempted to gybe. In doing so, the boat shipped water and being heavily ballasted she sank bodily. Mitchell went down in her as did also one of the sailors; the other clung to the buoy, and Captain Baxendale, who was a good swimmer, was seen in the water, but he appears to have dived to find Mitchell and did not come up again. It is supposed that he got entangled in the boat's gear. The accident was witnessed from the Kwella and a boat was lowered and proceeded to the rescue, but was only able to save the remaining Chinaman and the Captain's dog. Search was made for the bodies but it was not until late at night that they were found.

The boat in which the fatality happened is the Ellen, a pretty 16-ton one-sail yacht, smaller than the Mascotte and the 24-raters. Captain Baxendale carried it about with him in his ship.

The accident threw quite a gloom over the community, both Captain Baxendale and young Mitchell being favourites with all who knew them. The former, before he joined the China Navigation Company, was in the P. and O. Co.'s service, and Mitchell, a recent arrival at Shanghai, was a bugler in the Volunteer Corps.

Captain Baxendale leaves a widow and family of dependents who are now in Australia.

An inquest was held on the bodies on the 24th, but owing to the fact that no interpreter was present it had to be adjourned until the following day.

"CRANK" MASON'S VICTIMS.

The two Hau brothers, one of whom was Mason's servant, arrived at Nanking on the 14th instant, and have since been put on trial. The following is the reason given by the Shenping why the unfortunate "boy" and his brother were wanted at the capital. The authorities recently captured a certain Koala Hut member whom the officials intended to punish by decapitation on the spot, but during his examination he gave the names of a large number of his confederates and on this account his death was postponed.

In the course of a trial some time ago, the prisoner was asked by his judges whether he knew the great leader K'ang, who had lately been captured. The prisoner replied that this man K'ang was noted for his prowess in Hunan, and a great number of members considered him their leader. He said that K'ang was also concerned in importing arms in 1891. Further, he said that he only knew very little of the case for the reason that he had never met K'ang. He then asked the officials to cause the important criminals in the arms-smuggling case to appear in court, and affirmed they knew "all" about the matter. This explains why the inmates of the Shanghai prison were conveyed to Nanking. On the afternoon of the 15th inst. the two prisoners were taken before the tribunal examining the case.

On proceeding with the trial, the documents containing the evidence the accused had given were first read aloud to them. They were then warned to give true answers to the questions addressed them on pain of punishment. This finished, the Court addressed the accused these questions to which the Court considered they "must know."—Whether or not they had met this leader K'ang, while they were at Mason's house? How many times had K'ang altogether visited Mason? How much money did K'ang give Mason for the purchase of arms? To these they replied that when K'ang visited Mason's house, their master and the caller also remained outside and their conversation was carried on in a secret language, each whispering into the other's ear. No one was allowed to see them at such meetings. Therefore they said they did not know the leader K'ang, but they went on to state that they had heard some people say that K'ang once gave them 7,000 to 10,000. The accused also declared that as their master had never said anything to them they therefore did not know much about the matter, but once by stealthily reading a list made by Mason they noticed a large number of names, which they do not now remember. The only ones that could be recalled they said, were the first few at the head of the list, the first being Li Hung, the second K'ang, the third a certain man named Tsing, and so on. What these people were intriguing about and where they lived, etc., the prisoners asserted they had no knowledge. At this stage the Court adjourned and the prisoners were taken back to their cells.

NEWCHWANG.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

15th April, 1893.

Business is very slack this year. There have not been nearly so many steamers as far as there were up to this time last year.

At the opening of the season of 1892 there were some 4000 packages of cargo for shipment on market; this year there were only some 10,000. This is owing to the failure of the bean crop. The year 1893 promises to be one of the worst experienced for many years.

"The glory has departed out of Israel." The Father of the settlement, the venerated Mr. Bush, has gone, and has left his "children" disconsolate. No longer will his venerable figure be seen wading his way along the bank; no more will his silvery locks white with the snows of some 50 Newchwang winters be blown by the gentle Mongolian zephyr. By the waters of the Liao we sat down and wept. At least the little ones did, and some of the big ones too, upon the departure of their best friend, Miss Bush, who left on the morning of the 13th for London via Pekin and Chicago. It will be long before another will occupy the same place in the hearts of the little ones, and some of the big ones too, we think!

Newchwang gave them a right royal send off. Friends and acquaintances went down to wish them "God speed," and some tons of crackers were exploded along the bank.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

April 14th.

However much some of us may find to object to in the ideas and method of work of the Chinese Government of the present day, yet one, I think, can help admiring some of China's works of the past.

I have just returned from a short trip to a part of the country which was entirely new to me and which, as far as I could learn, had never been visited by a foreigner—though I always make that statement with hesitation.

In the course of my trip I travelled for some miles along the shore of the Hong Hsueh lake. I had seen so large a body of water for some years and it was worth a several days' trip just to get the delicious whiff of fresh air which came across the lake.

Not the point of especial interest to me was the enormous embankment which was built hundreds of years ago by the mythical (?) Lie Pei-wei all around the northern and eastern shore of the lake. The embankment, earth-made, is from 30 to 40 feet wide and about the same height. The side facing the lake is solid masonry to the height of 12 to 20 feet, constructed of great blocks of carefully hewn stone such as we see in the bridges in the south built into the embankment, about 4 feet in width. Every few feet along the surface we found engraved in the stone beautifully cut figures, sometimes of flowers, sometimes of different-shaped vessels and again of most remarkable-looking animals; and occasionally the carved figure of a lion.

I was much impressed by it. If I had only been a matter of a few miles it would have been remarkable, but to be told that it was the same for hundreds of miles seemed to me a wonderful exhibition of patience, pluck and expenditure of energy. The builder himself seemed to have been impressed with the expense and difficulty of the undertaking for I frequently saw engraved in the stones the four characters signifying "Gold embankment, eternal, solid." By the way, the lake has receded some miles from its northern embankment and inside the embankment we found the "well cultivated" and many villages and market towns. In fact, tradition says that the lake once covered most of the country south of Tsin-kiang and to the west of the Grand Canal, and even now nine miles to the east of us is a thriving town, Hu-chien, the "tip of the lake," which is supposed to have been in former times the northern limit of the lake, whereas now it is twenty miles off to the S. W.

Another point of interest to me was to see at some little distance from the shore a steam dredging machine. The object of the machine I could not find out—whether to clean the bottom of the lake or to dredge for clams, of which latter I saw large quantities, I do not know.

Just before reaching home we were caught in a great storm which appeared away off in the south and overtook us in five minutes time and for ten minutes enveloped us in a "twilight darkness."—N. C. Daily News.

"WHAT NEWS HAVE YOU?"

AN INCIDENT IN MID-OCEAN JUST AFTER THE CLOSE OF THE WAR.

Early one morning the mate was startled by the cry from aloft, "Black smoke ahead, air! A big steamer standing to the southward."

The captain was called, and in a trice bounces on deck, where, applying the glass to his eye, he took a long look at the stranger who had pushed so suddenly out of the early mist hanging low upon the horizon.

Whatever her character, we had but little chance of escape if she had fired guns. Many a glance of apprehension was directed toward the sombre hull and pair of sloping smokestacks with the twisting smoke trailing far astern.

"Show him our colors, sir! Bend on the ensign; we may as well be hung for a sheep as a lamb. If that fellow is a rebel the sooner we know it the better!" exclaimed the captain.

It was close upon the bells (7 o'clock) when the steamer revealed her nationality.

We fully yelled at the blood-red cross of St. George danced up aloft from the steamer's signal halyards. She was evidently a tro-pship bound for the Cape, a trifle out of her course, but we did not stop to consider that.

She was too far distant to speak, but in obedience to a gesture from the captain the mate emptied a bag of gaily colored signals on deck, and the boys were called ast to man the haliards and lend a hand to bend on the magic flag. Upward fluttered the parti-colored bits of burning, glasses were leveled and breathless expectation marked the sunburnt features of the clipper's crew; for the inquiry flying from our mate's mouth was: "What news of the American war?"

The flash of foam cast up by the huge propeller greeted our straining vision, the great steamer glided onward, but no responsive signals gladdened the anxious hearts of those yearning to hear news from home.

With a passionate exclamation of disappointment the captain closed the jibts of his long glass with a savage snap, saying as he turned away: "He hasn't our code. It's no use."

"Look at that!" suddenly exclaimed the mate, pointing. "What is he going to do?"

"He's coming about!" shouted the captain, his bronzed features fairly paling. "Can it be possible he has played us a trick, and is the Alabama? Stand by, all hands, for—"

A deep blast of the steam whistle rumbled over the foaming water, followed by a number of quick toots, as the steamer ranged to leeward; then an expanse of white canvas was lowered over the side.

Glasses were directed upon that bright patch of white, upon which dark lines could be discerned with the naked eye. The glasses showed these were letters.

"I have it!" shouted the captain, leaping excitedly into the rigging. "Spread the news fore and aft! It says, 'The American conflict is over! Davis a fugitive—and what's that? Heaven, no—yes—Lincoln is killed!'

"Strike the colors half-mast, sir," continued the captain to the mate in a subdued tone. Then he added, "Hoist the signal, 'Thank you,' to the steamer."

At that moment the sick, full-toned voice of a regimental band were wafted across the heaving swell, and in my eye glinted with emotion as the well-known strain of "Hall Columbia" was faintly heard. The steamer slowly fell off and resumed her course, while, as it layed out from me, I saw the men spring into the weather-rigging, giving three times three and waving their hats in return for the kindness of the courteous Englishmen. The stars and stripes were dipped three times, the horse whistle rang out in return, the "Meteor flag" slowly and majestically returned the salute, and the greeting in mid-ocean was over.

"The commander of that craft is a gentleman—every inch of him!" was the admiring remark of the mate as he glanced astern at the fast-fading trooper—Capt. H. D. Smith, U.S.N., St. Nicholas.

A SUBJECT FOR THOUGHT.

It is no simple matter to state in terms at all precise what forces are directly connected with the production of health and happy old age. More certainly is involved in the process than mere constitution. Healthy surroundings, contentment, and active, temperate and regular habits are most valuable aids. Hard work, so long at least as it is not carried beyond the limit necessary to permit of the timely repair of worn tissues, is not only harmless but a conducive circumstance. It is, in fact, by living as fit as possible a life in accordance with natural law that we may expect to reap the appropriate result in its prolongation. Great care should be taken to protect the system against the changes which disease makes therein; coming misery casts its shadow before it and intimates its approach by various signs, as a feeling of general weakness, nervous pain, nervous headaches and rising of sunrises from the stomach, backache and lumbar, failure of virility and gradual diminution of muscular power and similar symptoms, all tend to show that general debility is increasing in the patient's system. Such persons should take notice of the experience of Mrs. G. Whittington, 11 Conventry Place, South Melbourne, who for some years was afflicted with excessive nervous prostration, and who writes—

"No Fire Insurance has been effected, and any Goods remaining in the Godowns after the 5th May, will be subject to rent."
